

For every child now - and in the future

We are there for children, wherever they are

For over 70 years, since the end of World War II, UNICEF has helped to protect vulnerable children across 190 countries and territories. Our work aims to help all children - especially the most disadvantaged and marginalised - to lead safe, healthy lives and realise their full potential.

We have achieved so much...

With the help of our supporters, so much good has been done in that time, and we've seen so many positive results. 2.6 billion more people have cleaner water today than in 1990, for example. We've supplied 447 million children with vitamin A supplements in just two years, reducing blindness and boosting immunity. And as of 2016 we've reached almost half the world's children under 5 with life-saving vaccines.

...But the future is uncertain

Yet when we look at the war, unrest and displacement in the world right now, we can't help but worry for future generations. What challenges will children face two, three, even four decades from now? What crises will they endure? We know that children suffer the most in times of hardship.

A simple way to make sure we will be there forever

Leaving a gift to UNICEF Australia in your Will is the simplest way of making sure that the children of the future won't be forgotten. It means that we can be there in the years to come, at home and abroad, doing everything we can to improve the lives of future generations of children.

Did you know that 7% of our funds come from gifts in Wills left by generous Australians who believe in a better world for children? It's remarkable. So whether it's a big gift, or a modest amount, please know that it will make a real difference. Just 1% of an estate could help give children clean water, make sure they're fed, provide education, or protect them against deadly diseases.

We've made it easier

The GoodWILL Project has made the whole process of leaving a gift in your Will as simple as possible. People wanting to give are put into contact with a lawyer who will generously give their time to create a simple Will, free of charge. This act of kindness from both parties will ensure that every child has the chance of a better life.

Without us, some children's fates are sealed before they're even born. With a gift in your Will, we can be there for them for generations to come. We think that is a wonderful legacy to leave.
